

Water Conservation Notice

While investigating pooling water today, we discovered a hole in the clear well (a holding tank used to test and treat water if needed).

As requested, we reported the finding to the Tennessee Department of Environment and Conservation whose guidelines warrant a voluntary conservation of water use until it is repaired. This does NOT mean we are out of water or required to boil water. It is safe for all uses.

We are simply asking our water customers to refrain from washing cars, watering lawns, power washing, etcetera for the next few days.

Hopefully, repairs will be made within the next few days.

Please check back for further updates.
